

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus for implementing a network gateway supporting one or more service interfaces. In one implementation, a wireless gateway includes: a local network interface; a wireless interface; a controller connected to 5 said local network interface and to said wireless interface; and one or more service interfaces connected to said local network interface and to said wireless interface; wherein each service interface provides data conversion between two 10 services.